

Pursuing my Wine Passion

Description

What motivates you?

Today's prompt is just three words – What motivates you? – however it's the most difficult one for me till now. Here are my thoughts on this.

Sometimes I feel that motivation naturally comes to humans. One can say that we are inherently made up that way. I means imagine the world we live in, each person knows that death is certain but still we endeavour to do our best towards our slated goals during our lifetime. The human spirit for achievement is universal and that's the primary factor of our evolution and success.

What Motivates Me On a personal level, the main motivation factor for me is always keep trying to create an environment for me and my family, which is much beyond and better than what it presently is.

And going a step further, the two intrinsic ways in which I go about my motivation cycle is through a Quest for knowledge and Pursuing Passions.

I will not go beyond this since I see this becoming autobiographical. But here I would mention that my chosen niche of wines is surely helping me in my current motivations in life and I see it as a driving force towards achieving my goals.

Hopefully all the above made sense to you all as it's certainly a tricky thing to articulate. Looking forward to knowing about your own views on this prompt too. Cheers.
